SENIOR CLASS WILL

We, the members of the Class of 1942, realizing that our time for departure from the Cridersville High School is only a matter of a few days, deeply feeling the responsibilities, powers, and privileges that we have cherished during our high school career, and believing ourselves to be sane, of sound mind, and undominated by our fair faculty do hereby make, bequeath, and publish this to be our last will and testament:

To Earl Zimmerman: The high soprano voice of Maxine Beeler.

To Billy Eley: The height of Bob Bice.

To Mary Thompson: Irene Binkley's natural curly hair.

To Bobbie Rohrbacher: The soft voice of Jackie Bowers.

To Peggy Carter: Billy Clark's small stature.

To Byron Williams: The dancing ability of Virginia Decker.

To Grace Keeling: Paul Frazier's hiny hair cut.

To John Henry: The spirit of Dick Graham's Willlys.

To Harold Mayer: Katie Kaiser's red hair.

To Anna Louise Plapp: The athletic ability of Betty Keeling.

To John Raesky: The wave in Andrew Kiser's hair.

To Howard Porter: The dainty hands of Kathryn La Rue.

To Paul Sheely: Those shapely legs of Ruth Mayer.

To Kenneth Thomas: The nonsense of Charles Meeker.

To Miss Beck: That enormous appetite of Irene Naus.

To Betty Thomas: Alvena Plapp's passion for pigtails.

To Wayne Lowry: The curly hair of Ernest Ramga.

To Mr. Hutchens: The fighting spirit of Fred Reichelderfer's Chevrolet.

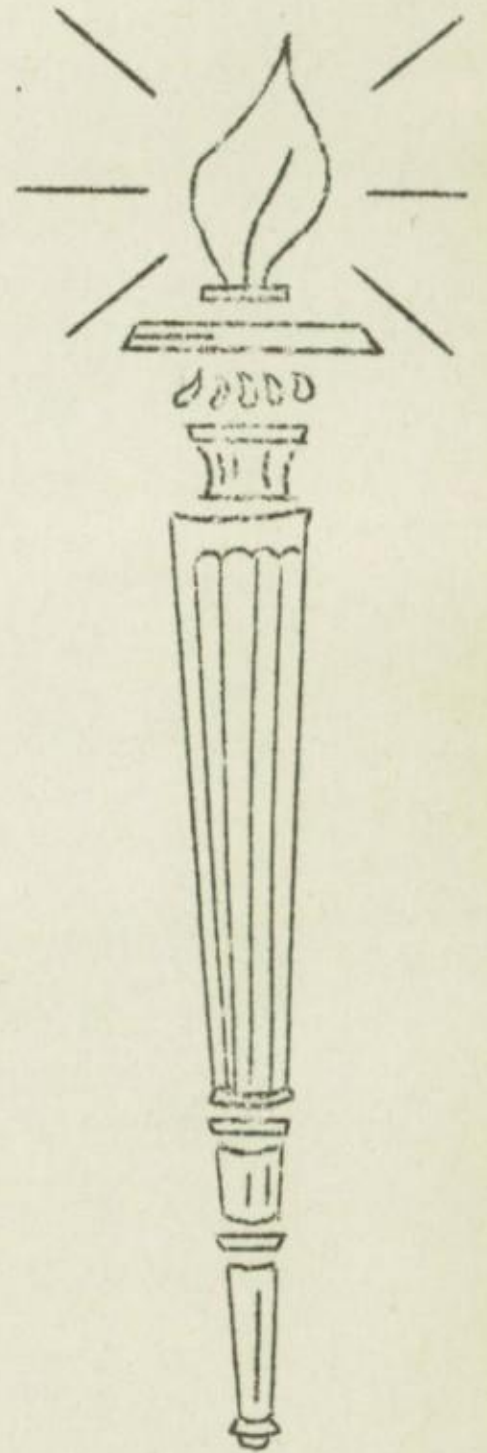

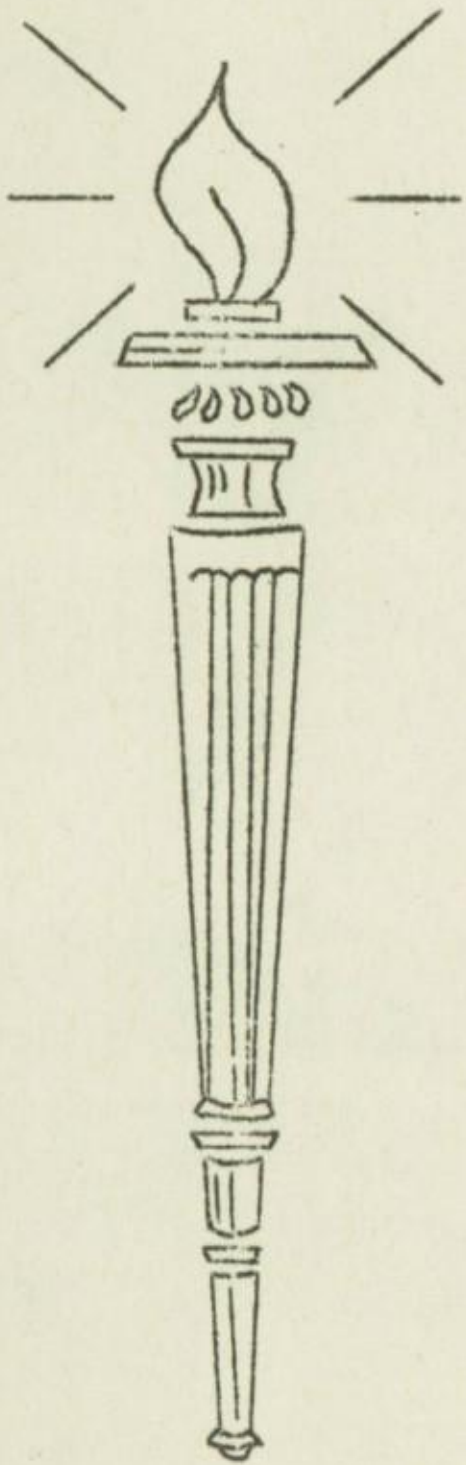

To Leo Feiblekorn: The intelligence (?) of Clifford Rison.

To Gene Du Bois: The ability of Emma Sellers to fix hair.

To Clara Nutt: That mischievousness of Alfonda Valenti.

To Don Dieringer: The sarcasm of Eva Williams.

To Chloene Bechdolt: Mary Coplin's sense of humor.

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

Last week during my concert tour in the East my secretary handed me an envelope, which upon opening I found to be a formal invitation from one of my dear C.H.S. classmates; urging me to return to that, now great, metropolis, Cridersville; to attend the return engagement of that sensational musical production "The Chocolate Soldier," starring the famous singing team "Powers-Kiser" (now Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kiser) to be presented on stage in the new "Cridersville Theatre" at the corner of Main and Sixteenth in the heart of Cridersville's Broadway.

Thrilled at the prospect of returning to my old home-town after twenty long years. I hurriedly called off my concert at Carnegie Hall and left at once for Cridersville.

My! My! What a small world, who should board the train in New York but my old school chum Alvena Plapp. Alvena's life is still a mystery. She has just sponsored a bill for an elevator to the top of the Great Pyramid. Some people say she's a man hater, other's say she's married. Ah! Well! She lives on an oasis in the Sahara Desert and writes her books. It seems Irene Naus and Alfonda Valenti have become the great South American sugar heiress; living on the magnificent estates El Nauso and Val Valenti.

The swiftly-moving train pulled into the station early the next morning. It was absolutely overwhelming! That Main Street of twenty years before had grown into dozens and dozens of streets and boulevards. Skyscrapers, hotels, and great department stores, had replaced the old Post Office, Bank and others. As our taxi sped along 52nd. Street, Alvena pointed out the beautiful Fifth Avenue Beauty Salon owned and managed by the "Helene Reubenstein" of the day, Maxine Beeler. What's this?? Maxine has a business rival? In the next block we find the "Seller's Beauty Shoppe". Emma has just patented a new skin creme made from carrot juice and is now testing a preparation to remove warts and moles.

The taxi finally hauls before the exclusive "Frazier-Plaza Hotel." When entering the spacious lobby I decided to drop in for a chat with the manager. There seated at his desk in a luxurious office was Paul,--cigar in mouth, blonde secretary on knee, red head giving him a manicure, and a brunette beauty brushing his (now) wavy locks. Paul was bubbling over with news of how he had come into the "money".

My suite at the hotel was breath-taking. At seven I dressed and went down to the Green Room for dinner. While on my way to my table in the corner sat the "Raving--Romeo" of the hour, Charles Meeker amid a--siggling group of females. Charles explained that after twenty years of globe-trotting he had met all the girls he cared to at last and had come home to marry Angeline. The poor girl has waited all this time.

Cliff Rison's orchestra has wiped Glenn Miller's out of history and he was tonight playing in the Green Room at the Hotel. (you should hear Cliff beat those drums.)

SENIOR CLASS PROPHECY

Featured with the orchestra was that "Dinah Shore" of the day (Kate Kaiser) singing her heart away and still stealing the hearts of her many dozen admirers. "Confidentially I just learned that Kate is still falling in and out of love and is unable to make up her mind.)

Picking up the paper, I find a large column written by our classmate and now nationally famous Home Economist, Betty Keeling.

What is this on the front page?? Tomorrow at Grand Park a memorial service will be given in honor of a returning war hero and heroine,--Captain Dick Graham of the warship "Go Get Em' Rams" and the only competition Clara Barton ever had, Red Cross Nurse Virginia Decker. It has been rumored that Dick was the hero who erased the Japs right off the map! Hurrah! Virginia, the heroine, was right there to revive him from shock when he fired that fatal shot that destroyed Hitler.

Across the dining room and into the banquet Hall the executive board of the Westinghouse was holding their annual Banquet. My, my, can I believe my eyes! President Ernest Ranga is giving an address to his fellow executives!

The following day Alvena called me and asked me to have lunch with her and then spend the afternoon visiting dear, old Criddersville High. I accepted and about one o'clock we walked into Principal Mary Coplin's Office. She told us that we might be interested in visiting the chemistry class under the guidance of Professor Eva Williams. She explained that Professor Williams had turned over a tiny corner of her laboratory to Billy Clark who is till feverishly trying to perfect a remedy for short-growth.

From the Chemistry Lab. we went to the History Class being taught by Professor Fred Reichelderfer whose whole class make perfect grades. It is being announced now that Fred is going to hand in his resignation to take over a position in New York City, (Choosing the right figures for chorus girls.)

Last of all we visited the art class under the supervision of art instructor, Bob Rice. They are now working on new stage scenery. Very beautiful!

On our way back to the Hotel we passed by two of the dearest, sweetest little cottages which Alvena explained were occupied, one by Mr. and Mrs. Claude Rhinehart (former Irene Binkley) and the other by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Snider and twins Kit and Kathie. (Two of America's Ideal Families.)

It was a wonderful and exciting journey but all journeys have an end. Good-bye Criddersville!, I must get back to New York and Carnegie Hall.
